THE WORLD THIS WEEK

By ROBERT PATTERSON

All Star Cast

Not in many years have American voters been offered the all-star cast which will bid for their favor at the November polls this year. Probably not since 1912 when California divided its vote almost evenly between Wilson and Roosevelt—a photo finish that gave 283,436 to the former and 283,610 to the latter—have there been the makings of a more hotly fought contest than that between Wendell Willkie and Franklin D. Roosevelt. The champion of the New Deal this year meets a challenger worthy of his mettle, a contestant who is likely to prove equal to him in personality, speaking ability, and aggressiveness. Traditional two-party government unmistakably has come back with a bang. Let the ballots fall how they may, nominees Roosevelt and Willkie are sure to prove in the momentous weeks ahead that there's no dearth of life and vigor in the American political system.

"Imperial Destiny"

Once again the militarists of Japan have climbed into the saddle and, under Prince Konoye, formed a cabinet to their liking—one that is pro-Axis, anti-American, and bent on speedily extending Nippon's control over the entire Far East. Asia for the Asiatics, the touchstone of Japanese militarism, is now certain to lead that nation on new paths of conquest toward the Dutch East Indies and the Philippines. The Open Door in China has all but slammed shut, and the once open door of European markets has likewise nearly closed. The era of free trade, based on cooperation among nations and respect for the rights of others ,is entering a period of eclipse as new campaigns of conquest proceed to stake out "no trespassing" signs on the conquered domains. The dreams of a "divine, imperial destiny" which today inspire such campaigns are evidence of violent hang-overs from the 18th and 19th centuries when the world lived in an era of scarcity. Today we live in an era of abundance with more than enough goods and resources available or producible for all people and all nations. This is a fact known to most people, but not to conquest-hungry leaders, obsessed with delusions of grandeur, whose minds are two centuries, if not two milenniums, behind the rest of the world.

Work Sheet of Progress

Moving rapidly forward on America's rearmament program, the National Defense commission can offer a work sheet which—considering the inevitable difficulties to be hurdled at the outset—shows heartening progress. Heading toward a goal of 25,000 warplanes within two years, the commission has awarded $100 million worth of contracts for such craft since July 1. In little more than a month's time it has cleared a total of $1,661,891,494 in army and navy contracts. Progress has been made in cutting through bottle-necks

Kiwanians Tour States by Proxy

The Kiwanis club toured United States and parts of Canada by proxy Tuesday when J. O. Leverton and Carl Field recounted interesting features of their transcontinental trips.

At the time of their journeys through the grain and corn states of the middle west crops were very fine, with promise of wonderful harvests. The present heat wave may change the picture.

They reported that it was becoming more difficult to visit all kinds of industrial plants owing to fear of and guard against sabotage.

Neither experienced any trouble about entering Canada or returning to this country.

A. A. Thielke presented a clarinet trio, including Douglas Strong, Billie Harrison and William Doust, with Nina Page accompanist, that gave several selections.

Next Tuesday Mr. Thielke will be chairman and arrange the entire program.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Krohn of San Francisco will be over night visitors of Mrs. H. C. Smith Saturday, July 27, which is the joint birthday of mother and daughter.

Mrs. Etta C. Alison has been visiting relatives and friends in Gilroy, San Jose and Campbell during the past two weeks. Her plans include visits at Oakland, Palo Alto and the Fair with a few days stay at Yosemite, before returning to Los Angeles where she is now making her home.

TO THE RESCUE

Granddaughter of Mrs. Cora Ricker Married Friday

Impressive rites marked the marriage of Miss Clara Joan Hain of the Pinnacles and Kenneth Lausten of San Jose, Friday afternoon, July 18. The Rev. William Edward Parker, Jr., L. L. B., D. D., granduncle of the bride united the happy couple at a lawn ceremony at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Cora M. Ricker of Harrison avenue, Campbell.

Miss Hain, who graduated from Hollister high school last June, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ralph Hain. Mr. Hain is a cattle rancher near the Pinnacles and Mrs. Hain teaches in the San Benito county schools.

Mr Lausten is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lausten of San Jose.

The lovely young bride, charming in her white wedding gown, was given away by her father. Her flowers were gardenias and white roses. Miss Ruby Wallin was the maid of honor, while the bridegroom's brother, Bud Lausten acted as best man.

Miss Wallin wore a pale blue gown and carried a bouquet of carnations.

At noon, Mrs. Ricker entertained close relatives of the young couple at a dinner. The table was centered with a beautiful three-tier bridal cake and was decorated with dainty arrangements of rain lilies, pansies and asparagus fern. Attending the dinner were Miss Hain, Mr. Lausten, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Lausten, Mrs. Nancy E. Hain, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lausten, Dr. and Mrs. Parker, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. Ralph Hain, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rathbun, Miss Wallin, Bud Lausten, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Cutting, Miss Martha Jane Wier, Charles Douglas Cutting and the hostess Mrs. Ricker.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Campbell home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Cutting. The tea table held a lovely bowl of fuchsias which were reflected by a large mirror.

The newlyweds left immediately on their honeymoon, a motor trip including stops at the San Francisco Fair, Yosemite and Los Angeles. On their return, the new home will be established in San Benito county, where Mr. Lausten is a rancher.

Richard Morton Joins Faculty of Santa Clara U.

Richard Wallace Morton has been added to the law faculty of the Santa Clara university. He received his A. B. and LL. B. degrees from that university and recently finished his master of laws degree at Stanford. He is specializing in classes on tax laws, and is also continuing his private law practice.

Morton, who is one of the two popular sons of Herold W. Morton, was married in March to Miss Betty Herold, and they are now living in Santa Clara.

Theta Rho Girls To Meet August 2

The Theta Rho girls of Campbell will hold their next regular meeting on Friday, August 2. This was decided at the last meeting as many of the girls and both the advisers will be away on vacations this month. All members are urged to be in attendance at this time.

The club's last regular meeting was held on July 5, when necessary business was transacted.

The sports dance given recently was a great success. Enough money was raised to send two children to camp, and also to give the funds of the club quite a boost. At the last meeting the girls also decided to make a donation to the Red Cross.

The Drew Canning company will start its pack of peaches and pears Saturday.

Mrs. Lillian Ohlen who is matron at the Odd Fellow's Orphan's home at Gilroy, spent two days in Campbell and Los Gatos the first of the week.

Cambrian Club To Help in Red Cross Work Here

Feeling that the women of the Cambrian district will wish to assist in the Red Cross work now being organized in Campbell, Mrs. Martin H. Farnham, president of the Cambrian Home and School club, is now busily active getting the group together.

The opening date for the Campbell Red Cross center, located in the building in the rear of the library, has been set for Tuesday afternoon, July 30. There the women of the community interested in the work are asked to gather to start sewing and knitting for the refugees. All materials are furnished by the Red Cross and the labor is all that is asked for.

For further information concerning the Cambrian club's participation in the work, call either Mrs. Farnham at Campbell 58-F-3 or Mrs. Jack Wright, Campbell 4-W.

Red Cross Room To Open Tuesday

The Red Cross sewing room will be open for the first time next Tuesday at 1 o'clock p. m. and all women interested in sewing or knitting are urgently invited to come.

The use of the small building in the rear of the library has been donated by the Campbell Woman's club, and materials for work are supplied by the Red Cross.

There is great need of supplies not only for war refugees, but for readiness in times of disaster resulting from natural causes.

Three Lane Road Now Under Way

Work of demolition of the old interurban bridge over Los Gatos creek is under way as preliminary to converting the present vehicle bridge into one of three lane size.

The county acquired the railroad right of way after electric street car service was discontinued.

There will be quite an interval during which the road will be closed and a detour will be made into the creek bottom to the south end of Dillon avenue, J. M. Dahl, president of the chamber of commerce learned from the Valley Construction company that was awarded the contract by the county supervisors.

A group of baseball fans will motor to San Francisco Friday afternoon for dinner and to witness the night game between the Los Angeles Angels and the San Francisco Seals. Composing the party will be Joe Gomes, Lowell Benson, Roy Archibald, Herold Morton, Antone Ferro, Dr. Wyland R. Morgan, Jack Murdock, Ray Mathis, Guy Farley, Ralph H. Hyde and Carl B. Field.

Constable Evans To Pick Up Dogs Without Licenses

Constable Harry Evans wishes to call the attention of the community as well as dog owners to several sections in the California State Dog law and especially those sections concerning dogs running at large.

Section 1 of the law states: It shall be unlawful for any person to own, harbor or keep any dog over the age of three months, unless such dog has attached to its neck or leg a substantial collar on which is fastened a metallic tag giving the name and post office address of the owner of such dog, or a metal license tag issued by the authority of a county, city and county, or any municipal corporation for the purpose of identifying such dog and designating the owner thereof.

Any dog, found running at large, without such tag, may be seized and impounded by any peace officer.

Constable Evans is entitled to pick up any and all stray dogs that are without such a tag.

Section 10 states: Any person violating any of the provisions of this act is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction there of shall be punishable by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars for the first offense, and for the second offense a fine of not less than fifty dollars and imprisonment in the county jail for ten days or both.

Anyone desiring further informatoin on this state dog law should get in touch with Constable Evans.

State Fair Will Open August 30

Visitors to the California State Fair at Sacramento, scheduled for 11 days starting August 30 and running through Sept. 9, will find great improvement in all departments, a tour of the fair grounds reveals.

A party of visitors, escorted by Kenneth R. Hammaker secretary-manager, and members of the fair staff recently inspected the newly decorated and rearranged education and woman's buildings, the livestock buildings, the dairy products buildings, Governor's hall, the race track and grandstand and the fine new junior division which, with its 14 bright new streamlined buildings for the use of the Future Farmers of America and the 4-H clubs will, without doubt, be one of the most popular spots on the grounds this year.

The trip brought forth highly complimentary comment from the visitors, two of whom were from St. Paul, where the Minnesota State Fair is an annual event of major importance.

Miss Adena Sessier of Bakersfield, is here for the summer, the guest of her aunt, Mrs. O. J. Nicholls and family.

ROOSEVELT VS. WILLKIE

There has never been a presidential election like this one promises to be—and there will never be another one like it. For the issues on which it must be fought are at once so fundamental and so diametrically opposed that on November 5 the American people must choose between two roads as different from each other as night is from day; and from the road they choose there will be no turning back.

One road is pointed by the New Deal—with its eight-year record of experimentation and its steady movement toward governmental dominance of business, of social advances, of reforms, of labor, of capital—on to final solidification of American Democracy in a pattern of state paternalism.

The other road, strangely, is that of none of the political strategists. It is the road proposed by Wendell Willkie and the millions who spontaneously catapulted him into the Republican candidacy. His crusade is for a return of the control of private enterprise, large and small, to the people; for a return of government to the strict functions of government; for the liberation of farmer, worker, craftsman, businessman and investor from tax-financed competition.

The champions, strong and sincere men, will fight it out in the political arena. And the people, silently watching and weighing, will decide, as always, their own fate.

THE SHEEP AND WOLVES

Registration and selective training, for at least one year, of men between the ages of 18 and 65 is essential to national defense. It is likewise the most "democratic method" of bringing the army to its authorized strength of 375,000 men and of increasing the national guard to 400,000.

These views, presented in Congress the other day by Chief of Staff General George C. Marshall, were warmly seconded by other officials. But from the ublic they met a mixed reception, with some educators and scientists branding such action a fateful step toward war and fascism.

Regardless of the merits or demerits of this particular measure, the only relevant issue is its necessity. If it is found essential to national defense, the American people will wholeheartedly support it.

The charge that for this nation to arm itself is to provoke war is not supported by the facts. We live in a world where to go unarmed is to invite attack, where to be passive is to encourage aggression, where to be strong offers the best means of ensuring peace. We want none of Europe's or Asia's wars—but that is no guarantee Europe or Asia may not bring their wars to the shores of the New World.

America wants peace. America hates war. So do all civilized people. But, as one astute observer puts it, there is small point in sheep passing resolutions in favor of vegetarianism as long as there are wolves who hold a different point of view. The one and only crucial question before the nation today, and toward which all thoughts and energies must be concentrated, is how we can most effectively and speedily strengthen our defenses, ensure our safety, and discourage any menace to our security.

HUNGER IN NAZIDOM

Reports from abroad say the scourge of near famine will strike Europe this winter—an ominous prospect for the new masters of that continent. Hungry stomachs and desperate people are the explosive stuff of which revolts are made. Though revolt against Nazidom will cause little sorrow in America, the cruelty of hunger and famine will tug at our hearts, and the prospect of markets in Europe is certain to tug at our purse strings.

Yet, in the view of seasoned experts, even should this nation export wheat and other farm products to Europe this fall, we shall never permanently recapture our war-lost outlets there. In the vanishing export markets of 1940 observers see simply the culmination of declining trend in agriculture exports that's been going on for 40 years. Countries which once largely imported from us are copying our scientific rotation of crops, our use of mechanized implements. The result is that our agriculture today is almost entirely dependent on its market in the United States. Fortunately, the country is better prepared to meet that challenge than 20 years ago when large scale distribution was in its infancy. Since then, a third of all farm families have found new markets through nation-wide retail systems which have extended the selling season of products, made intelligent short cuts in distribution and thereby added to farm income.

Accordingly, America is far better able to consume more of her own products and less dependent on foreign markets. Whether we feed, or do not feed, Nazidom's hungry people, it is plain we must henceforth look increasingly to ourselves, not Europe, to solve our problem of want amid plenty.

IT'S BUDGET TIME!

Local budget time in California this year carries with it graver responsibilities than usual.

California's taxpayers—and this includes everyone—will pay an additional $69 million in taxes this year as their share of rearmament costs.

They will pay this on top of the $920 million to be contributed to federal, state, and local governments during the current twelve-month. Which is to say, California citizens must meet virtually a billion dollar tax bill this year. Nor does this take into account the costs of a second $1 billion increase in national defense taxes now being forecast in Congress.

These citizens deserve a chance to prove that they can take a great rearmament program in their stride, that many new millions of dollars can be withdrawn from the normal channels of trade without disorganizing our economy. It's up to state and local governments to see that they have that chance. California's general public is going to retrench on living expenses to the extent of $70 million this year. Our taxing bodies should stand shoulder to shoulder with the public in practicing retrenchment and weed out every extravagant expenditure, every money-wasting bureaucratic practice, every measure which, in one form or another would needlessly saddle upon citizens more crushing levies. The punitive tax advanced by the self-seeking person to hinder a competitor in business has no place in the present scheme of things. What is needed are economy safeguards to hold a check rein on living costs.

The public, as well as private enterprise, has full responsibility for meeting rearmaments costs. State and local governments must enable them to meet that responsibility. Only genuine economy provides the answer.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

Communists and other radicals, who have been busily sowing the seeds of class discord in the United States for years past, have taken to cover, to a certain extent, since developments in Europe have shocked this country into a realization that disaster follows in the wake of disunity.

The "fifth columnists" have neither departed nor been converted to American principles, however; they have merely ducked until the barrage passes over — and adopted a new propaganda technique, which calls for more subtlety and less direct action.

The radical propagandist has learned that untruths and half-truths, assiduously repeated — reiterated and retold, no matter how often they are denied—soon take on the semblance of truth by the very frequency of their repetition.

A striking example of this type of propaganda—and its effectiveness, even in the face of disproof and denial—is the story that farm ownership in California is rapidly drifting into the hands of a few "land barons," and that the small farmer is being squeezed out by corporation - controlled "factories in the fields."

Originally, the story was hatched in Communist Party headquarters — and openly spread by Communist agents. Now, however, with things getting too hot for them, known agents are staying in the background — and the propaganda against the farming industry is being spread by "respectable liberals," whose membership in the Communist party is unknown or who have been duped into believing their own propaganda.

But just what are the facts? California needs to know them, for California needs to wage a campaign of truth to offset a flagrant campaign of untruth and misrepresentation which has damaged this state and its farming industry in every state in the nation.

Here are some of the basic facts, as revealed by the United States census:

The tital number of farms in California, during the period from 1910 to 1935, increased from 88,197 to 150,360, or 70.48 per cent. California's total acreage, during the same period, only increased from 27,931,444 acres to 30,437,995 acres, or less than 9 per cent.

In other words, California has 70 per cent more farms than it had 25 years ago, although its farming acreage has increased less than 9 per cent. Yet this is the state, according to the propagandists, where individual farm ownership is on its last legs and where the "land barons" are taking over!

But let's get on with the facts—facts vouched for by Uncle Sam.

The United States census reports for 1910, 1920, 1930 and 1835 show a consistent reduction in the percentage of California farms in each bracket above 100 acres.

Here is the record for the

The new dramatic promise which Joan Crawford evidenced in "The Women" reaches a surprising culmination in "Susan and God," picturization of the Rachel Crothers' Broadway hit which has become an even greater screen success. The film, co-starring Frederic March and featuring one of the season's strongest supporting casts opens today at Blanco's Campbell theater for three days.

Despite the magnificent handling of the theme by Director George Cukor, the brilliant screen play by Anita Loos and the individual gems of characterization turned in by March and the others, "Susan and God" is a personal triumph for Miss Crawford, for the delicacy and assurance of her work places her on an acting pedestal which she has never previously approached.

As Susan, the scatterbrained, self-centered social gadabout who adopts a new social movement as a fad and makes a complete botch of the lives of her friends and herself by her meddling, the star overshadows every other item of critical consideration. As the inebriate husband, Barrie, who finally wins the battle with himself and Susan, March turns in a matching performance which makes his return to films a welcome event following his Broadway success in "The American Way."

POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

If and when the Olson Recall committee makes the grade and has the required number of voter-signatures to force Governor Olson to stand trial before the electorate, California will probably be treated to an exhibition of legal and extra-legal jockeying that will be edifying to behold.

The recallers, for example, have been forwarned that it wouldn't be kosher to mess up the general election by allowing the recall issue to qualify in time to appear on the November ballot.

With Roosevelt and Willkie squaring off for "the battle of the century," neither Democratic nor Republican party chieftains want any distractions which would divert attention from the main order of business.

That means that if the final batch of signatures on recall petitions are obtained in the immediate future they must be held back and not filed with county clerks until it is too late for the issue to get on the regular November ballot.

Sponsors of the recall movement are prepared for that situation and are said to have pledged their word that Mr. Olson will be allowed to go his way, undisturbed, until a President has been elected. In fact, they have been figuring on a special recall election in December. But that presents another problem.

The joker in the proposed December election is that the average man or woman, around Christmas time, does not give a whoop about politics and is solely concerned with trying to get through shopping before Santa Claus hikes back to the Northland. California had a classic example of that situation in December, 1933, when the Central Valley Water project act was submitted to the people at an election about two weeks before Christmas. Except in the areas where the project was a local, vital issue, the vote was so low that it looked like a post-Christmas bank account.

If discretion is the better part of valor, the recallers will undoubtedly decide on another postponement, holding their final petitions back so that the election would fall in the latter part of January or early February.

Governor Olson's forces, meanwhile, will be jockeying furiously to keep the recall issue from ever reaching the ballot. One of the Governor's right-hand men, Secretary of State Paul Peek, is in a key position to scrutinize the petitions carefully for possible slipups or illegalities. And court action to try to forestall the recall election is conceded to be almost a certainty.

M., at the front door of the County Court House in the City of San Jose, County of Santa Clara, State of California, SAN JOSE ABSTRACT & TITLE INSURANCE CO., a corporation, Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, in Lawful Money of the United States, the following described real property, situate in the County of Santa Clara, State of California, and bounded and described as follows:

Lot Twenty-six (26) as delineated and so designated upon Map entitled, "Tract No. 112, Hedegard Subdivision of part of Sec. 27 & 34 T 7. S. R. 1 W. M. D. B. & M. at Campbell, Santa Clara County, California," which said Map was filed August 28, 1939 in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Santa Clara, State of California in Vol. 4 of Maps, pages 14 and 15.

Farmer's Corner

period from 1910 to 1935 (the 1940 census figures are not yet available):

Farms ranging in size from 3 to 49 acres each increased in number 80.85 per cent. Farms of from 50 to 99 acres increased in number 10.36. Farms under 3 acres increased 8.73 per cent. Thus 99.94 per cent of the increase in number of farms in California was in farms less than 100 acres each.

Various propagandists, who follow the Communist "party line," also have launched a vigorous campaign, during recent months, against the farm cooperative movement. Charges have been made that the Agricultural Council of California, legislative board of the co-ops, does not represent the small farmers, but the so-called "corporation farmers," or those presumed to have large acreages.

To get the facts, the writer requested from each of the farm co-ops which are members of the council a record of the number of farms comprised within its membership and their classification by size.

Out of a total of 18,218 farms listed in 14 different cooperatives which have replied to date, and which include fruit, nut, cotton, poultry and dairy farms, the segregation as to size is as follows:

Under 20 acres, 13,339 farms, 83.22 per cent of total; 20-39 acres, 2,712 farms, 14.89 per cent of total; 40-59 acres, 1,064 farms, 5.84 per cent of total; 60-99 acres, 635 farms, 3.49 per cent of total; 100-299 acres, 389 farms, 2.14 per cent of total; 300-399 acres, 58 farms, .32 per cent of total; 500 acres and over, 21 farms, .12 per cent of total.

In short, 94 per cent of the farms represented in cooperatives are less than 60 acres in size—and 97.44 per cent less than 100 acres.

As a matter of plain fact, "corporation farming" in California, where it has been attempted, has usually proved to be a financial headache, and has been on the downgrade for years past. The individual farmer who tills his own acreage and attempts to make a decent living for his own family is the backbone of California's farming industry, and can more than hold his own with the would-be "city farmer" who tries to compete with him by mass production. The California farm is still a farm—and not a factory.

"Skylark" Starts Monday, July 29 at Curran Theater

The coming of Gertrude Lawrence to the Curran theater in San Francisco for a limited engagement starting Monday, July 29, is held as an important event. No star of the legitimate stage is held in greater favor than is this distinguished comedienne from overseas.

Two years ago Miss Lawrence became the toast of the town in Rachel Crother's play, "Susan and God." Now she is to be seen in Samson Raphaelson's brilliant comedy "Skylark," which Ashton Stevens, critic of the Chicago Herald Examiner, declared was a much better Gertrude Lawrence vehicle than Susan. "Skylark" enjoyed a highly successful season at the Morosco theater in New York and comes to San Francisco directly following the long Broadway run.

"Skylark" has to do with the successful effort of a young matron to hold her husband. The rival is not another woman, but a business. Tony Kenyon is really in love with his wife, but his advertising agency has made her a business widow. In solving this domestic problem, Mr. Raphaelson, whom we remember as the author of "The Jazz Singer" and "Accent on Youth," has written a brilliant comedy with sparkling dialogue and adroit situations.

"Skylark" comes here in one long leap from New York with the excellent supporting company including such well known players as John Emery and Glenn Anders.

Gertrude Lawrence in "Skylark" will not be seen anywhere else in this territory. Because of this, the producer, John Golden, has made special arrangements to take care of out-of-town reservations both through the mail and at the box office. Prices in the evening reach fromm 55c to $2.75, and matinees from 55c to $2.20, including tax.

in the manufacture of machine tools for defense industries. Between 30,000 and 40,000 men have already been enrolled in a special program to train skilled labor for national defense jobs. Up to now no requests have been made to the commission for such labor—"Evidence," reports the commission, "that thus far the needs of private industry for skilled and other labor are being met." The nation's order for full speed ahead has begun to show results. It will continue to do so if boondoggling, petty quibbling, and other forms of wasteful, needless delay, are firmly outlawed.

He Forgot to Remember

Ooff to prison this week marches M. I. Annenberg who collected a fortune from his racing sheet news but forgot to remember Uncle Sam's tax collectors. The fateful Ides of March, which spelled Caesar's doom, have tumbled not a few modern Caesers who reigned unchallenged over gangsterdom and politically corrupt cities—until their duplicity caught up with them. Annenberg will serve a three year sentence for income tax evasion—time enough, certainly, to learn that watchdogs of the treasury department maintain a sleepless vigil, particularly on the Ides of March.

His smoking retort, which advised his superior "to go to hell" indicates that any "long time between drinks" is going to be permanent!

We have to hoard up money for vacation too, like the majority of folk in our circumstances. BUT we DID put in new gas heating equipment. What we saved 10% about equals what we will spend for our vacation. Monthly payments are put off until after October 1st, which is a big help to our budget. The men who installed our new furnace say it will give a lot more heat, faster and livelier and will be mighty reasonable to operate. We feel real proud of this summer bargain we made.
